TWO CENTS

END OF THE WAR FITTINGLY CELEBRATED IN CHARLEROI

Celebration Took Place Afternoon and Evening. Thousands Took Part

ALLIED FLAGS WERE FEATURE

The signing of the armistice which brought the great world war to a close was fittingly celebrated in Charleroi Monday afternoon and evening. The town made no attempt in the morning to stage any demonstration not even a whistle making noise but early in the forenoon managers of the various manufacturing plants the Imperial Glass, Macbeth-Evans, the Pittsburg Plate Glass and the Hussy-Binns met with Burgess Woodward in the mail office, where plans were formulated for a demonstration to take place in the afternoon and evening.

It was decided that all whistles in the borough as well as the fire bell should begin to sound at 5 o'clock, which was to mark the formal opening of the program of the festivities, which were to celebrate the splendid news that had been received earlier in the day from Washington. The arrangements further provided for a parade to form at 7:30 o'clock in the evening at McKean avenue and Second street and to march over a prescribed route, down McKean to Tenth and up Fallowfield to point of formation where it would dismiss. It was the purpose of the managers that the plans would be kept going all day, but the employees felt a little different over the proposition and after 12 o'clock there was but little doing in any of them. The news proved to be too good and the workmen took at least a half day off to properly celebrate.

The program adopted in the morning however was carried out to the letter. The whistles began to blow at 5 o'clock and kept it up for a considerable time although crowds on the streets long before that time had been adding to the gaiety of the occasion with impromptu celebrations all over town.

In the evening, however, the big demonstration took place. The parade formed at the appointed time and while it could have been larger it made up in enthusiasm and noise-making instruments what it might have lacked in numbers. Thousands of people congregated along the streets to witness the parade, and to add to the general din of the occasion, which was kept up for several hours. A feature of the evening was the abundance of flags which were shown in every hand. Not only were the allied colors displayed from business houses and homes, but thousands of banners of the same sizes were carried by the marchers in the parade as well as by those who witnessed the demonstration from the sidewalks. Bands played patriotic airs, people were jubilant and the very atmosphere seemed to be charged with patriotism, while on every hand joy was expressed that the great conflict in Europe in which millions for so long had been engaged had at last come to a glorious and victorious ending.

The celebration was a fitting climax to a day filled with excitement. It Charleroi to be depicted even more demonstrated the intense patriotic intensely when the boys came home.

WILL CONTINUE WORK ON NEVILLE ISLAND PLANT

Government officials at Washington on Monday, stated that work on the Neville Island gun plant, now in course of construction by the government, would be continued and the plans completed. Already fifty-four million dollars have been appropriated for this work, and it is estimated that at least one hundred millions will be required before the big plant is finished.

ALL DRAFT CALLS ARE SUSPENDED

One of the first and immediate effects of the ending of the war is the cancellation of all calls for selected men to entrain for training camps. A number of calls had been issued by the Provost Marshal General's office, but had been held up for various causes. These calls as well as all others have been cancelled by the signing of the armistice by the German representatives. There were to have been a number of men left Charleroi this and next week, but they may now rest assured that their services will not be required by the government for military purposes, and they will be permitted to pursue their usual occupation in peace.

As to the men in the various cantonments however, it is likely that it will be several months before they are released from service. It is probable that a great majority of them will be sent overseas to relieve the men who have borne the brunt of the fighting during the past year, and who no doubt are ready to come home. The United States Army in France has done remarkable work and no doubt the government will be willing to relieve them just as soon as possible, and allow the policing and cleaning up, as well as guard duty provided for in the terms of the armistice, to be done by those who are now ready for overseas duty and who are anxious to go to France. All selected men in suits, however, are now exempt from service, for which no doubt they are very thankful.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors as well as the Fraternal Patriotic Sons of America and Loyal Order of Moose for their kindness and sympathy and floral tributes in our hour of sorrow, the death of husband and father, James Watkinson.

feeling of the folks at home and their unbounded joy that events had so shaped themselves that victory had come to the allied arms and the United States. Even after the parade was over impromptu groups following after bands gave vent to their enthusiasm in many ways. It was a great day and evening for to a day filled with excitement. It Charleroi to be depicted even more demonstrated the intense patriotic intensely when the boys came home.

Charleroi's Quota For War Work Is $42,280

The quota of Charleroi and the is to be done for the organizations Red Cross a sea connected with it for who look after the spiritual and recreational life of the soldier. En-campaign is now under way through-out the United States is $42,280. This amount of money will be taken care out of the War Chest, after some additional contributions which are expected from manufacturing companies which are not members of the War Chest Fund have been paid in. The quota for the Red Cross campaign was paid out of the War Chest last summer and now the same thing

BUT LITTLE CHANGE IN FOOD PRICES

Immediate dropping of food prices as a result of the conclusion of an armistice cannot be expected, according to Food Administrator Hoover, who issued a statement from Washington on Monday night. He said that while the prices of some commodities would decrease others would increase.

"With the war virtually over," said Hoover, "we enter a new economic era and its immediate effect on prices is difficult to anticipate. The prices of some food commodities may increase, but others will decrease because, with liberated shipping, accumulated stocks in the southern hemisphere and the far East will be available. The demands upon the United States will change in character but not in volume."

MURDERED BY AN EX-CONVICT

Ches. Anderson, colored, was shot to death at 6:35 Saturday evening last at his home, 614 McMahan avenue, Monessen, by a Southern negro named Lindsay Moore. Both men were employed at the Pittsburg Steel plant. Anderson, after the shooting, was hurried to the hospital at Monongahela but he died shortly after reaching that institution. Immediately after the shooting Moore left the house and made a bee line for the Monessen bridge in the hope of making his get-away. He was followed by Monessen police and a member of the Home Defense police in an automobile, who passed the fugitive on the way. They waited at the bridge entrance and when Moore came up, he was immediately arrested, although Moore made a show to pull a gun but the officers were too quick for him. He was placed in the Monessen lockup for a hearing before Justice White last evening at 6 o'clock who held him for court and he was taken to jail at Greensburg today. Moore is said to have made the boast to the police that Anderson was the fifth man he had killed, one of them being the warden of Georgia penitentiary. Before he died Anderson made a statement in which he implicated Moore.

A GREAT DAY IN WORLD'S HISTORY

The great war in Europe ended on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month of 1918. The day will no doubt in a certain measure be celebrated as an international holiday, particularly by those nations who were allied against the Central powers of Europe led by Germany. Along the battle front the soldier boys are reported to have watched for the appointed hour, that they might not make any move not permitted by the terms of the armistice. They knew they could not advance after that hour, but they kept pushing on toward the enemy until the last second of the final hour, when they came to a halt. The allied armies, with a mighty roar, sent the great volley of big guns against the German lines just before the expiration of the hour, and then like true soldiers they were ready to await the final acts of the great drama in which they were such vital factors. November 11, 1918, was no less momentous for our boys fighting in France than for the people back home, who celebrated the day in a frenzy of joy.

PRISONERS WILL BE RELEASED AT ONCE

One of the immediate effects of the armistice which Germany signed early Monday morning will be the release of all allied prisoners without a like reciprocity on the part of the allies. This will mean that all Americans who have been held prisoners by the Huns must be released and allowed to return to their respective armies. When these men get to their commands it will be possible to tell in what manner they were treated by the Germans while being held in prison camps. Some gruesome tales have come from Germany as to the manner in which the prisoners have been treated; their release within the next few days will tell the tale in a manner not to be doubted.

Mrs. A. S. Siskman and Mrs. I. E. Roland have returned from their trip to New York.

HEALTH CONDITIONS GREATLY IMPROVED IN PAST 24 HOURS

IMMENSE STRENGTH OF UNITED STATES ARMY

The total strength of the American army at the end of hostilities on Monday, reached a total of 3,764,677 men. Of that number 2,200,000 had been sent to France, Russia and Italy, to transport these boys back home will require several months even under the most favorable circumstances. The complete demobilization of this immense army may not be completed for a couple of years.

EMPLOYES TAKE A HALF HOLIDAY

One of the peculiar features of the celebration on Monday was the remarkable unanimity shown by workmen in mills, mines and factories to take a day off to celebrate the ending of the war. In Pittsburg and the towns adjacent thereto the men did not go to work at all in the morning but kept the celebration going most of the day. In the towns in the upper valley, however, the men were a little late in starting on their holiday; in some places and particularly in Charleroi, it did not begin until noon.

At the same time, however, doubt existed that the employees and employees at many of the local factories would be off for the day. As one of the managers expressed it, they began to "fade away" about 11:45 a. m. and within an hour not a man was on the job. They had just quit for the balance of the day in order to take part in the celebration going on in honor of the great victory which had come to the allied arms in Europe. They felt they could afford to take a little time off for this purpose and the managers and superintendents made no objections. Those in authority knew of the strain under which many of the men were working, particularly those who have sons or brothers in the army and who have been serving a great load lifted from their shoulders when the news of the signing of the armistice reached here, and were naturally joyously relieved to know that hostilities were at an end. For them it will be the waiting of a few additional months before their boys return home, for which event they will now make every preparation.

HUSBAND'S DEATH IS A MYSTERY

James Hatfield a laborer employed at the mines at Marianna and well known in that community was found dead in bed at his home here on Monday morning and he is believed to have been killed by his wife Ophelia Hatfield. County Detective George Marker made an investigation Monday afternoon and it appears the shooting was the outcome of some domestic quarrel. The husband was found dead in bed and the wife was found in the room. The wife's story is that she had gone to bed and had gone down stairs. She said she had a shot in the house between the husband and herself and that she heard a shot during the night. When she went to awaken her husband she found him dead. The wife was found in the room and the husband was found in bed. The wife was found in the room and the husband was found in bed. The wife was found in the room and the husband was found in bed.

Possible That Quarantine May be Lifted by Health Board

WILL MEET WEDNESDAY EVENING

Local health conditions improved very materially in Charleroi on Monday and unless there should be some additional cases by reason of the demonstration of Monday afternoon and evening, it is probable the quarantine will be lifted in the community this week.

Mr. Darby local health officer reported 30 new cases this morning but at least half of these were from Saturday and Sunday which were not on the health officer's list Monday morning. As a matter of fact, there were about 15 new cases reported for Monday and if the same improvement is shown for today the local quarantine which has prevailed for the past five weeks, will soon be a thing of the past.

The local health board will meet tomorrow evening, at which time Mr. Darby will recommend that the quarantine be lifted, that hotel bars be allowed to resume under certain restrictions, that moving picture houses be opened but managers cautioned against any crowding, that children under a certain age be barred from certain period of time and that schools and churches be permitted to go on with their work.

If the recommendations are adopted and it is possible they will be, the town will be able to resume its normal conditions, for which the people will be duly thankful.

At the emergency hospital Dr. Forster reports conditions as going along smoothly and very satisfactory. On Monday three patients were discharged and two admitted, and this morning there were 55 patients on the roll. Today they expect to discharge four or five with a much larger number on Wednesday. There are only two serious cases in the hospital, and with all the balance being afflicted in a much milder manner, it is possible for the emergency hospital to close up within a week.

This great improvement in local health conditions will be a matter of satisfaction to our people, who will rejoice in the passing of the influenza which has caused so much distress and trouble in the community.

from her. Hatfield, his wife and five children were sleeping in the room. The children were recovering from influenza. Monday morning the physician at Marianna was called to see Hatfield home to see Mr. Hatfield. The physician did not know that Mr. Hatfield was ill as he had been at work on Saturday last. The doctor found him dead. Investigation led to the finding of the bullet hole in Hatfield's head.

The wife's story is that she had gone to bed and had gone down stairs. She said she had a shot in the house between the husband and herself and that she heard a shot during the night. AMERICAN MODESTY

By this time every American reader is pretty well prepared for the following report of Mr. Edward Bok of the Ladies' Home Journal, on his return from a tour of observation in Europe as "the guest" of the Allied nations: "The big outstanding fact that strikes you in England and France is the predominating prominence of President Wilson and the supreme confidence in him; he has the confidence of the people of both nations to a far greater degree than their own leaders." But when Mr. Bok says that American soldiers "have won their reputations almost as much by their modesty as by their fighting" we are somewhat surprised as well as deeply gratified. An unexpected and "entire lack of spread-eagleism on the part of Americans" has greatly impressed the English and French, says Mr. Bok. "It is commented upon everywhere and we hear nothing but the surprising modesty of our people."

This is delightful and it means much. Years ago it might have been somewhat different. We were once a boastful people, but now we are really too big to care to boast. Besides, our boys did not go to Europe on a holiday excursion. They went to stand by England and liberate France, brother nations. They went to "clean up" the evil thing that oppressed the world and knew that they faced a grim business. They knew, moreover, that they still had much to learn and that the experience of English and war-worn French could teach them. Our boys have "done us proud" by their becoming modesty as well as by their valor.

CONSERVATION CRUST

1-2 cups wheat or rye flour.
1-2 cup barley or corn flour.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-4 to 1-2 cup of fat.
Water to make stiff dough.
Sift flour and salt together. Cut the fat into the flour mixture. Add water, mixing and handling as little as possible. Wheat substitutes need a little more water than all wheat flour. Chill until ready to roll out.
If you want to have pumpkins ready for quickly made pies all winter, you may can them or dry them most successfully.

You may can pumpkin by cutting it in cubes after removing the rind. Blanch or scald and pack in clean, freshly scalded jars. Fill the space left in the jars with boiling water. Place lids and rubbers on the jars and arrange them in the boiler. Boil for two hours on the first day, and then let stand in the water. Always fasten the lids tightly after the first fifteen minutes of boiling.

On the second day boil for one hour, and for two more successive days, one hour of boiling is necessary. Pumpkin, as well as winter squash, may be treated as follows: Remove seed. Cut the pumpkin or squash into strips. Peel and remove stringy center. Slice into small pieces and boil until thick. Pack in jar and sterilize 120 minutes in hot-water bath. With steam pressure outfit sterilize 60 minutes at 5 to 10 pounds pressure.

Pumpkin may be dried in this way: After removing the rind, slice the pumpkin thin. Thread these slices on a string and hang them over the kitchen stove, or place them on much heat. Store them in paper bags well tied.

If you use the dried kind for pies, soak it for an hour, preferably longer, then cook it as fresh pumpkin.

KEEP IT UP

A citizen of Charleroi, in speaking of the local War Chest the other day, said it would be a good idea to keep the organization going even after the war has ended. Under natural circumstances the functions of this organization will cease when it has taken care of the demands which are to be made upon it by the Red Cross and the United War Activities. However, the people have been schooled in systematic giving and as there are times when such a fund could be applied to some proper public necessity he suggests the idea of keeping it up as a fixed feature of the community.

There are often times when a demand for money is made upon our citizens to take care of some public enterprise, and the existence of such a fund would make it easy to take care of any expense that might be contracted. In addition should any disaster overtake the people of the community, or even those of an adjoining neighborhood, such a fund would make relief instantaneous and efficient. There would be no need to wait until a public subscription was taken up—the money would be available at once and under such circumstances it would be possible to give instant relief. The war has taught us many things, not the least of which has been the work of co-operation, as well as giving to help most worthy objects.

MAN PURSUED IN RUSSIA

In the English-speaking world people read Bernard Shaw then laugh and forget him, being never quite sure that he really "means it." This is particularly true of his theory that man is the pursued, not the pursuer; that the "life force" being stronger in woman, she gets or struggles hard to get the man of her choice, even though she may hoodwink him into the belief that he is the protagonist in the drama of courtship. But it seems that in Russia Shaw has been taken seriously, or at least that his underlying principle of sexology has been officially endorsed. The news comes that the Bolshevik government of freaks has decreed not only that young women on reaching the age of eighteen shall proceed to pick out the man of their choice but that the chosen man shall not have the right to refuse to wed.

One can readily imagine the unpleasant consequences. The young Russians who so earnestly desired peace will prefer even war to this. They will go about like hunted beasts, fearing even to meet a woman's eye lest she proves to be a husband-anxious lying in wait to pounce as it were. A reversal of the time-honored method is bad enough, but if a woman must pose the question, the man who happens to be unwilling ought at least to be able to say: "This is so sudden, you know," and go his way in peace. Alas for the poor young Russian—to be literally kidnapped under legal sanction by Mary Jane when he wants Daisy! It may be safely predicted that the victims of this freak tyranny will not number many hundreds of thousands before it is violently overthrown. Even the Bolsheviks can not defy the laws of nature. Of course a woman ought to have the husband she wants—or stay single; but the same is true of a man.

BRINGING THEM HOME

Naturally the questions will arise, How long will it be until the boys come home? That is a difficult question to answer, although it is stated in many quarters that it will take at least two years to bring the men home. It must be borne in mind that American troops have been crossing the seas for a period of seventeen months, and their number in foreign service is now in excess of two million. If they could be brought back at the rate of 250,000 per month it would require nine months to transport the men from France to the United States.

Another feature which must be taken into consideration is the fact that Great Britain will in all probability withdraw her vessels from this service, which will leave her matter of transportation up to the United States alone, a big task to undertake. Moreover, the army will not be started on the homeward journey until after the treaty of peace has been accepted and signed, and that may take many weeks yet. It does not look very favorable for many of the soldiers returning home much before the beginning of next spring and it will take at least a year thereafter to bring them all back home.

KAISER OUT OF IT

The abdication of Emperor William and his escape from Germany to Holland will not save him from just punishment should the allied power decide to bring him to trial. Moreover the departure of Hindenburg and probably other high military commanders means military clique which was responsible for the great war now almost closed will not be present at the peace table. In fact the Kaiser and his crowd are completely out of the peace negotiations. The allied powers will have to deal with others in power in the German empire, but whoever they shall be, the dictum of the victors should be, "Sign here."

Lesson for Pig Raisers.

Efficiency in pig raising was shown in Louisiana, where two men selected litter mates eight weeks old. At the end of the fattening season one pig weighed 220 pounds, the other only 61. The expenses were respectively, $15.54 and $5; and the one sold for $38, the other for $8. This means weight in the proportion of 1 to 8; expenses, 3.11 to 1; selling price, 7.25 to 1. Thus, "scientific raising can eliminate the notorious 'razorback' hog."

A Puzzler.

A Frenchman, boasting in company that he had thoroughly mastered the English language, was asked to write the following from dictation: "As Hugh Hughes was hewing a yulelog from a yew-tree, a man dressed in clothes of a dark hue came up to Hugh and said, 'Have you seen my ewes?' 'If you will wait until I hew this yew, I will go with you anywhere in Europe to look for your ewes,' said Hugh."—Tin-Bits.

Ability of the Aged.

It has often been said that a man cannot learn a new trade after he is forty, but this statement has frequently been disproved. Peter S. Du Pont was eighty when he wrote his valuable treatise on the Cochiti Chinese language, and had only then recently taken up the study; and the late John Bigelow was still an author turning out a book when he passed his ninety-fifth birthday. — Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Effigies Thought to Bring Luck.

The scarab of the land of the Pyramids is the expression of the hope of resurrection and the desire to live long. As the beetle was supposed to be always born anew, so the carrying of the beetle or its image came into the customs of the ancients. The warriors of an elder day hung the images of gods about their necks, and many of the brooches and pins of the old fighters were the effigies of luck-bringing divinities.

Are Your Children Bored?

The children of the house should not be allowed to monopolize a guest's attention. Mothers are usually blind to their children's faults, as less loving eyes see them, and they fail to understand that a guest's apparent delight in playing with the youngsters is often no more than politeness, and in reality he is bored and very tired of "playing bear," telling fairy stories and examining favorite toys and books.

The Final Melody.

It is not so much by what we attain in this life that we are to be made happy, as by the enlivening hope of what we shall reach in the world to come. While a man is stringing a harp, he tries the strings, not for music, but for construction. When it is finished it shall be played for melodies. God is fashioning the human heart for future joy. He only sounds a string here and there to see how far his work has progressed.—H. W. Beecher.

Soldiers Need Sugar

To the fighting man sugar is not a luxury but a necessity, it is a food which is quickly converted into heat and energy. Save them sugar. Try our VICTORY BREAD. It contains 20 per cent substitutes according to Government rules.

A PLAIN TRUTH

A man may patronize the mail order houses for years, may send them in that time hundreds of dollars, and at the same time they would not accommodate him for a two-cent stamp. This is the plain, unvarnished truth. If you think otherwise try it for yourself and see. These out-of-town houses do not know you -- do not care to know you -- are not interested in you in any way -- only in the money you send them. Spend your money with your own townsmen who know you for what you really are, who appreciate your worth, your business, your assistance in building up home interests.
